Don't be afraid. Just Belt it Out!

Are you a belt person? If you're someone who is afraid to wear belts, or stopped because you didn't think you looked good in one in the past, read on. You'll learn how always to look and feel great wearing the perfect belt for you.

If you have a figure that is more straight up and down than curvy, try wearing a narrow belt whether leather or chain link. Your body type is one of the only ones that can wear it effectively so rock it! A short torso also looks great and longer in a narrow belt.

If you have a curvy figure, wear a wide belt. It highlights your waist and upper torso which makes the eye see perfect proportion. Since you have a slim middle, feel free to choose fun, eye-catching belts with embellishments.

A top heavy figure should choose a wider belt but not mega wide or it will make you look even more busty. A double wrap belt is a great alternative for you. Your particular body type looks great in this style.

Wide hips can be tricky when choosing a belt. You want to define your waist but you don't want to draw unnecessary attention to your hips. What is a girl to do? Choose a somewhat wide belt that blends with the color of top or dress you're wearing. You don't want a belt that is a huge contrast or has a lot of embellishment.

A tip: that's true for all body types except very slender straight up and down: wearing a belt with a tight or body-skimming dress or top is going to draw attention to where you don't want it. Choose a silhouette that has more drape to it and is not tight to the body. This will compliment any figure.

I wear suit jackets quite a bit for my corporate clients and I like to add a belt so it defines my waist. This technique works for almost all body types.

Follow these guidelines and you'll look and feel confident every time you put on a belt. You may just wear them more often!

Wardrobe Building Guidelines for Men

The secret of the best dressed man is that they neither draw attention to themselves nor strike observers as flamboyant. They simply are well put together.

This can be accomplished with just a few sets of clothes and if selected properly a man with only 2 suits, 4 dress shirts, 4 ties and 2 pairs of shoes has more than 50 combinations at his disposal.

The key is to make sure your clothing is interchangeable. A core of classic colored suits and dress shirts complimented by time tested tie patterns, give you a much higher return than any trendy garment that only matches 1 other item in your wardrobe.

A few rules apply here:

-Make sure your clothes fit your body now, not what you wish it to be

-Select classic colors, patterns and styles. There are colors that compliment your complexion. Have a color analysis done to discover what they are and use them. Always select timeless style in your high dollar items.

-Avoid cheap; instead seek value. Purchase quality; you'll often pay more but you'll save money in the end. Simply put, you'll wear the clothing more often, feel better when you wear it and it'll last longer.

-Give yourself time. Building a wardrobe can take years. The timeframe is important because it gives you time to develop and refine your style.

These simple truths and timeless tips, if followed properly will help you to fulfill your potential as an Impeccably Dressed Man.

How to Instantly Look Thinner

Is it possible to look thinner in a very short amount of time? Yes! It's all in how you dress. Read on to learn how.

When you've gained a few pounds, the easiest outfit to look great in is a tailored, short or 3/4 length sleeve dress in a dark color. Skip the baggy tent. It'll just make you look bigger.

Any dark, rich color such as navy, charcoal, forest green or purple will give an illusion of being thinner.

A monochromatic outfit gives the eye a long, slender line to follow, which makes you look just that. Any color will work with this trick.

High heels make your legs look longer. If your legs aren't very thin, stay away from shoes with straps around the ankles. They visually cut off your leg and make you look stumpy. If you have to wear booties with a skirt, make sure your tights are the same color.

If your stomach, hips or thighs are larger than your ideal, shapewear will do wonders. There are many levels of compression from minimal to extremely high. The higher the compression, the more sucked in you'll be. A long legged, high-waisted shapewear will take care of all of those areas.

Finish everything off with eye catching accessories, so they'll do just that, bring people's eyes to your face and neck.

You'll look so great people will ask if you lost weight!
